PERFORMANCE

The hydraulic garage comes standard

The optional automatic bath platform will handle even a jet ski

It's a given that from Galeon a boat would have intuitive functionality and stunning looks, and the 385 is no exception.

Dual-colored and striking in its appearance, the 385 features low-cut, hull-length windows, brightening the interior of the lower deck and providing a futuristic look. Skylights in the bow sun-deck fill the master bedroom with natural light, while the flush floor on the main deck follows the latest trends.

The helm station is roomy, and features a retractable roof that provides protection from the elements. Moreover, the cockpit is protected from sun and rain with a marquee that opens and retracts automatically. Fit a tender or personal watercraft up to 2.6 meters in length in the new hydraulic garage system – it comes standard.

The living spaces provide for all your needs, from the C-shaped settee, chaise longue, wet bar and exterior galley to the helm station. Accommodation space on the lower deck features an L-shaped galley, an L-shaped salon, an owner's suite (fore) with a private bathroom and double cabin (aft) also with a private bathroom. These are luxuries rarely seen in this class.

The automatic sunroof on the Htl is larger than that on the Hts model

HTL

Based on the popular 385 HTS, the Galeon 385 HTL sports an extended roof for extra protection of the cockpit area. Owners will find the extended roof of the HTL useful in places where weather conditions change rapidly and are difficult to predict. But the longer roof's additional functionality compromises neither the overall design nor the performance of the sporty 385. A bigger sunroof is also a welcome addition to an already spectacular model.

The extended roof on the Htl covers most of the cockpit area

OPEN

This open twin of the highly successful 385 HTS was designed for the thrill seeking and adventurous. The 385 Open's stunning exterior combines extraordinary performance with flair due to its open-deck design. The roomy, functional interior makes this model a complete package. As with every Galeon, the 385 features exceptional performance and precise handling. On top of that, it features engine options ranging from 2 x 260 to 2 x 370 horsepower. Modern style, peak performance – the 385 is a great boat for just about any occasion.
